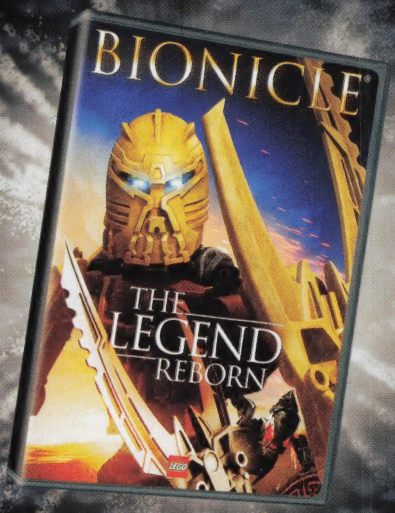
GLATORIAN LEGENDS

MEET THE BIONICLE® MOVIE DIRECTOR!



Check out BIONICLE.com for more behind the scenes movie action!

The newest BIONICLE movie arrives on DVD this September! LEGO Club Magazine sat down with director Mark Baldo about working on BIONICLE: The Legend Reborn.

Q. Hi, Mark! How did you get involved with the BIONICLE movie?

A. I was looking for a new project to direct. I was reading a lot scripts and when I read BIONICLE: The Legend Reborn, I really liked it! The story appealed to me for several reasons. First, it was a true hero's tale, second, it took place in a strange new world, and third, it had a good theme of teamwork and friendship.

Q. What are some of the challenges in converting BIONICLE sets into movie characters?

A. We had to go into the original toy designs and adjust some of what was already there, while adding pieces, to give them more detail. We also added moving parts, so that the Glatorian seem like fully functional, life-sized beings-- not like plastic toys. We wanted them to look like they have had a very rough life exposed to the harsh environment of Bara Magna. Their rusty, scraped and faded textures reflect the idea that life is hard in their world.

Q. Can you take us through the process of a BIONICLE character being animated?

A. Once the character is modelled in 3-D, it is then rigged. The rigging is like giving the BIONICLE character bones and muscles, so that he or she is then able to move in the animation program.

After modeling and rigging, the animators test the character, usually by animating a walk cycle. A lot can be determined by seeing how a character walks. Once the walk cycle is refined and approved, the facial rig is tested-- usually by changing expressions and doing a lip-sync test. (Lip-sync is the process of forming shapes with the mouth called "phonemes" that mimic the shapes our mouths form when we talk.)

Once the rigs are all working, the character is then put into the 3-D set and is posed for lay-out in front of the camera. After that, the animator begins the process of bringing the BIONICLE character to life with poses, movement, expressions and lip-sync. The early animation tests are very stiff and robotic,but once all the motion is added and properly timed-- the character comes to life and moves the way you will see him or her in the movie.

Only after all the motion is approved, does the BIONICLE character get all his textures and lighting-- just like in a traditional film.

Q. Do you have a favorite character?

A. My favorite character is Click. In the original script the unnamed scarabax beetle was supposed to change into a shield and stay that way for the whole film. I thought it would be fun to give the beetle the ability to change back and forth and also give him a name. That way, Mata Nui would have a little companion to take along on his journey.*

Thanks, Mark, we're all looking forward to the movie!

ENTER A WHOLE NEW LEGO® UNIVERSE!

What's LEGO Universe? It's the first ever massively multiplayer online game (MMOG) for LEGO fans, and we're busy making it RIGHT NOW! Hang on tight, because it's coming out next year, and the LEGO Universe will never be the same again!

How do I play?

The first thing you'll do in LEGO Universe is create the look of your in-game character: a LEGO minifigure that you can customize to be as unique as you are! You'll control your minifigure as it runs, jumps, and adventures through new LEGO worlds. Along the way, you'll get to build, play and socialize with thousands of other LEGO fans!

Can I build in the game?

Of course! Whether you're brand-new to LEGO construction or an expert brick builder, whether you like to follow the instructions or just go crazy making up your own creations, you'll be able to use bricks to build virtual LEGO models both on your own and with other players. You'll be helping to create and customize the worlds of LEGO Universe as you play!

How will I interact with other players?

You'll be able to chat, team up for quests, build amazing LEGO creations together, and choose whether to cooperate or compete as you complete fun and creative challenges...or adventure and build all on your own if that's your thing. How you play in LEGO Universe is up to you!

LEGO INDIANA JONES

MINDSTORMS NXT 2.0 IS A ROBOT REVOLUTION!

In 1999, the LEGO Group released MINDSTORMS, an all-new system that let you build and command your own robot creations. 2006 brought the next generation, MINDSTORMS NXT, which made building and programming your robot even easier and more fun.

Now MINDSTORMS fans are about to get whole new ways to create robotic wonders with MINDSTORMS NXT 2.0! We sat down with LEGO Creative Lead Richard Siegrist to talk about the new features and functions of this exciting set.

Q. Hi, Richard! Can you tell us a little about what role you played in the development of MINDSTORMS NXT 2.0?

A. As Creative Lead, I provide concept and art direction to the set designer – making sure the models not only look cool and have awesome functions, but that we deliver a product that delivers the maximum MINDSTORMS experience.

Q. What is new in MINDSTORMS NXT 2.0?

A. In 2006, we developed the NXT robotics system. In 2009, with the platform in place, we were really able to focus on the models. We have also replaced the light sensor with a color sensor, and added a Sound/icon editor. This lets fans customize their robots with their own sounds and images.

Q. Does the new version make it easier to build MINDSTORMS robots?

A. Yes, in two ways. First, we use fewer gears and use the motor more in 2.0. We have also included pre-programs, or finished programs, so fans can run a program as soon as they have built their model.

Q. Are there any tips that you would give fans who want to build their own robots with this set?

A. Yes. Take a look at http://mindstorms.LEGO.com – there are examples of thousands of cool fan-built MINDSTORMS models for inspiration. You will also find helpful links, like NXTLOG, blogs, and "Ask the NXTPERTS," where you can get help on building or programming questions.

LEGO club tv Q&A!

It's the newest, biggest thing on the LEGO Club website – it's LEGO Club TV! Meet Roger Cameron and Scott Decoteau, the talent behind the all-new videos that are taking the web by storm.

What do you each do on LEGO Club TV?

Scott: I host, I do motion graphics, some editing, a little bit of audio composing, graphic design, logo treatment...

Roger: I do some writing, some directing, some editing, and camera work.

Scott: He's the man with the plan behind the camera.

How does a LEGO Club TV episode get made?

Roger: It starts with a brainstorming session, where we go back and forth on what would make a cool and inspirational piece for a segment, and we develop the idea from there. We'll write some drafts of the script and work with a writer to flesh it out for Scott to work with while we're on location. And then it's basically the team of two. I hold the video camera, Scott holds the microphone, and we go for it.

Scott: A lot of the time it's loose and ad-libbed, seeing who's at the events and what people are building what models, and what we see as the most engaging and cool content for people to be psyched about.

How long does it take to put a new episode together?

Roger: About a month of prep-work, planning, writing, getting the idea for the segment, and then we go out and shoot it for a day or two, depending on if it's at a faraway location or somewhere close by. Then we come back and do the editing, the voice-over work, Scott works on all the motion graphics and the intros and outros, and we work with a music composer, put it all together, and hand off the CD to the LEGO Club team.

Is it easy or hard?

Scott: It's both easy and hard. Some parts are easy, some parts are hard. Getting to hang out with people and interview them is mostly easy and super fun. Some of the harder stuff is the grunt-work of actually editing the pieces and making everything that we shoot fit together. Easy or hard, it's totally worth it, because in the end you get to sit back and watch what you made.

Scott, do you ever get stage fright hosting LEGO Club TV? Roger, have you ever wanted to take a turn yourself?

Scott: It's a little nerve-wracking sometimes. I hadn't ever hosted anything before – my video career was almost 100% behind the camera. So it's different, which makes it really fun, because everything is new. Getting used to being on-camera is one of the harder challenges, but once you get in the mix and you start talking to the camera and talking to the people you're interviewing, it's just normal.

Roger: Only if Scott calls in sick.

What makes a great LEGO Club TV episode?

Scott: Fun, for sure. Inspiration. Community.

Roger: And a dash of humor.

What's coming up in future episodes of LEGO Club TV?

Roger: We're going to be working with Max on his new segment, yet to be named. He's going to go behind the scenes.

Scott: We're going to see a lot more Max in the LEGO Club TV pieces. I think he's ready to make his serious debut, and it's going to be amazing.

Roger: We've got more builder interviews, more behind the scenes stuff... My favorite builder, hands-down, is Sachiko of Let's Brick, and we're going to be doing a spotlight on her.

BEEP! BEEP!
WHERE ARE THOSE ASSASSIN DROIDS? DOOKU SAID THEY WOULD BE HERE PARSECS AGO!
ACTUALLY, SIR, A PARSEC IS A UNIT OF DISTANCE—BE QUIET, ANNOYING DROID!
YES, VICEROY GUNRAY.
HEY, I THINK WE'RE UNDER ATTACK!
SEPARATISTS! WHERE'S MY DROID?!
VRAP!
VRAP!

PILOT! WHAT IS GOING ON OUT THERE??
WE'RE BEING SHOT AT BY A CRAZY JEDI, SIR!
QUICKLY, LAND THE SHUTTLE!
WON'T HE STILL BE ABLE TO SEE US ON THE GROUND?
THAT IS THE GENERAL IDEA.
OHHHH.
ANAKIN! IT'S A TRAP!
HOW DID THEY KNOW WE WERE COMING?
ACTUALLY, I BROUGHT THEM IN CASE THE ASSASSIN DROIDS TRIED TO NEGOTIATE A HIGHER PRICE.
YOU'RE FIENDISHLY CLEVER, SIR.
WE'RE GOING TO CRASH!
BRACE FOR IMPACT, AHSOKA!

WOW, SNOW MAKES A PRETTY GOOD LANDING PAD.
SURE, BUT HERE COME THE DROIDS!
THE CORPORATE ALLIANCE TANK DROIDS ARRIVE AT THE CRASHED Y-WING...BUT WHERE ARE THE TWO JEDI?
SURPRISE!
WHAT ARE YOU DOING, ANAKIN?
DID I EVER TELL YOU ABOUT HOW I USED TO BUILD AND PROGRAM MY OWN DROIDS AS A KID?
ARE JEDI ALLOWED TO USE DROIDS?
HEY! COME BACK HERE AND TELL ME WHERE MY DROID IS!
BACK INTO THE SHUTTLE, YOU FOOL!
IT'S ABOUT TIME! REPORT, ASSASSIN DROID. DO YOU HAVE COUNT DOOKU'S PRIZE?
EXCELLENT. THEN COME AND MEET ME QUICKLY - IT'S COLD AND THERE ARE CRAZY JEDI HERE!
WELL, NOW HOW ARE WE GOING TO BRING THE COUNT HIS DROID?
OW...
